THURSDAY APRIL 12, 1900.

When Congress is in need of a fix the Speaker turns on either Representative Lents or Sulzer.

With the "Boy Orator of Bucks" and the "Boy Orator of the Plate" on the ticket this fall, the voters of this county will be expected to exercise mature judgment.

"Fighting Jack" Robinson has been selected for United States Marshal for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, for which distinction he is expected to put aside his belated title.

Mr. Dewey's religious sentiments undergo frequent changes. Mrs. Dewey was reared a Presbyterian, later she became an Episcopalian, then a Roman Catholic, and now announces that she has returned to the Episcopal Church.

Probably Harry Grim, the "Boy Orator of Bucks" was the most surprised at the choice of the Democratic State convention last week. Candidates had to be selected unawares, considering that there is at least a 250,000 defeat in prospect for the "unlucky" individual.

Senator Pettigrew has returned from Cuba where he was trying to sow the seeds of discontent among the people of that island. The military government of Cuba should guard against the afflictions to which the members of the United States Senate have been compelled to submit.

The vote on the right of Colonel Quay to a seat in the United States Senate upon Governor Stone's appointment will be taken Tuesday, April 24. In view of the fact that the Senator-favorable to the seating of Colonel Quay have been so persistent in forcing the issue to a conclusion it is presumed that enough votes have been counted to seat the claimant.

For the benefit of those who are in ignorance, the following regarding newspaper law is quoted: "The law regarding newspapers says if a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publishers may continue sending it until payment is made and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not."

The Jonkstown Times-Chronicle has completed its sixth year of existence. The editor says the paper was born in a little back room and now makes its home in one of the handsomest structures in town. The Jonkstown T.-C. is a first-class newspaper and the Clayton Brothers deserve great credit for the manner in which they have conducted the enterprise.

Joe Broadhurst's resignation which was adopted by the recent Democratic county convention instructing that delegates to the Congressional convention vote for a Bucks county man—Broadhurst—will probably be ignored by the convention. Since Bucks county already has one Congressional candidate in the person of Harry Grim, Broadhurst's name were effectively spiked.

The "dogger" ordinance has been signed by the Mayor of Philadelphia, and is now consequently a law. The police have been instructed to carry out the provisions of the ordinance to the letter. It is now unlawful to place circulars, advertising "doggers" or waste paper on streets, sidewalks, porches or in vestibules or yards of houses. Any person offending in this particular is liable to a fine of $20.

The Republicans of Montgomery county have elected the following State delegates to the State convention: W. L. A. Barker, Lower Merion; Edward J. Calne, Conshohocken; William Evans, Norristown; Henry A. Groff, Upper Merion; E. Lincoln Loux, Fraunholtz; Dr. Paul H. Markley, Hatorbo; Dr. Lewis W. Roger, Upper Providence; ex-Senator Henry D. Baylor, Pottstown, and John D. Cooper, Ambler.

The chief Philadelphia insurgent organ went out of its way to instruct the voters in Clinton county for whom they should vote for Congress. There were but two candidates before the party, Horace B. Packer, of Toga, and Elms Deemer, of Lyncourt, four counties forming one district. The Philadelphia organ instructed for Packer, but the voters were of an entirely different mind. Deemer had 41 delegates to Packer's 18 when the votes were counted. The Republicans of Clinton county demonstrated the fact that they are capable of doing their own thinking.

I. R. Haldeman, editor of the esteemed Harleysville News, is a candidate for Assembly nomination on the Republican ticket in Montgomery county. Brother Haldeman is a Republican who does not attempt to obscure his principles, and is entirely worthy of the distinction of a Legislative nomination. The only objection with which Mr. Haldeman's candidacy will be met, will be on the score of disinterestedness, a quality that should be encouraged instead of being condemned. The Republican press of Montgomery county deserves greater consideration at the hands of the party leaders than it has received of late, and it is hoped our esteemed contemporary will receive a fair show.

A deep political game is being played by the Republican leaders in Philadelphia. When it is taken into consideration that Dave Martin's bosom friends, Kieffer, Klemmer and Patton, have been shoved to the wall with no word of complaint from Martin, and that the Hon. David is now tooling about with Durham, McNichols, et al, it is evident that a new line-up is being perfected. In this connection a significant event in the recent attitude of Governor Stone while in Pittsburgh, that a Senator would be elected at the next session of the Legislature on the first ballot, which statement has been interpreted by some followers of the game to mean that Colonel Quay will not be a candidate, and that a fix-up will be the result all over the State. The Philadelphia movements tend to strengthen that belief.

Republican primaries were held in a number of counties on Saturday and in several cases bitter fights resulted in the factional struggle for supremacy. In Luzerne county the Quayites were unsuccessful in the effort to rout Representative Quay and the other anti-Quay candidates for the Assembly. Luzerne remains in the insurgent column. In Western Luzerne the Quay faction wrested control of the county organization from the anti-Quay candidates for the Legislature and passed resolutions endorsing the administration of President McKinley, Governor Stone and "commended the distinguished career of that unmatchable Republican leader, Hon. Matthew Stanley Quay." The nominees of the convention were instructed to go into the caucus for the purpose of nominating a Republican for United States Senator; and vote for and support the caucus nominee.

In McKean county the stalwart Legislature candidates defeated the anti-Quay candidates by 1000 majority. Senator Quay was endorsed in resolutions.

The Quayites ruled in Bedford county and in the convention the three successful Assembly candidates were instructed to attend the Senatorial caucus.

In Centre county the vote was close and the convention on Tuesday ended in a riot. The stalwarts claim to have been counted out and there will probably be a contesting set of delegates at the State convention.

Clearfield elected stalwart State delegates and endorsed the administration of Governor Stone.

The Quayites won hands down in Montgomery county in the contest for State delegates. At the convention on Tuesday, resolutions were adopted endorsing the State administration and commending Governor Smith for appointing Colonel Quay to the Senate.

Cameron county elected Quay delegates to the State convention.

In the Third Legislative district of Lackawanna county the Quayites were masters of the situation. Dr. Mackey, who bolted the caucus, was defeated for re-nomination to the Assembly by a two to one vote. Quay resolutions were adopted in the convention.

Quay's friends carried Forest and Clinton counties.

John L. DuBois, Jr., Esq., of Doylestown, has announced that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination of District Attorney to succeed John C. Swartley, Esq. Mr. DuBois is one of the junior members of the Bucks county bar and is an active party man.

A friendly rivalry exists between Mr. DuBois and Mr. Shelly which will probably be conducted until the day of the convention. In support of the candidacy of Mr. DuBois the Doylestown Republican says: "Mr. DuBois who studied law with his father, John L. DuBois, Sr., is energetic and ambitious. He has always performed cheerfully and earnestly any party work assigned to him, and in the last gubernatorial campaign, spoke at several places in the State at the request of the State Committee. He was admitted to the Bar in January of '96, and is in partnership with his father. Mr. DuBois enjoys a lucrative practice here and frequently transacts business in the courts of Montgomery and Chester counties. He is fully qualified to fill the office of District Attorney, and would make an efficient and energetic prosecuting attorney."

According to the machine organ Pennsylvania is entitled to two Senators. Quite true, Governor Stone should perform his constitutional duty and call the Legislature in special session to elect another—Philadelphia Press.

It is not believed that the desire which has been repeatedly expressed by the Press to have the Legislature re-convened is prompted by any sincere motive. The Press must know that no favorable result would obtain from an extra session. If Governor Stone had early signified his intention of calling the members together, it would be safe to assume that the Press would be as actively opposed to an extra session as it is now to the contrary. Whether Governor Stone was right or wrong in not re-convening the Legislature to elect a Senator it is certain it would have been absolutely folly to have done so. In view of the conditions as they now exist no member could go to Harrisburg and change his vote without endangering his reputation and giving rise to ground suspicions. The lines have been drawn too tight and a new jury will have to be empaneled to try the Senatorial case. The enormous expense of an extra session should be averted, and a new Legislature given the opportunity to settle the Senatorial question. Extra session talk is not intended to serve any good purpose.

The Puerto Rico bill was passed by the House yesterday by the vote of 161 to 168. As soon as the President affixes his signature to the bill the measure will become a law.

THE POWER OF ORATORY.
Senator Pettus may deride the orator, and in his endeavor to show disrespect to Senator Beveridge, insist that oratory is the trick of the mountebank. But even admitting as much for a partial truth, there is no guising the fact that oratory has counted for as much in the history of the world as any other means of moving men. Oratory made Bryan the candidate of a great party for the highest office in the government, and it won him the enthusiastic support of an enormous following. And had it not been for the dispassionate and forceful oratory which McKinley exhibited on the front porch at Canton it is difficult to conceive what might have been the result of the exercise of Bryan's gift of eloquence. Oratory fights no battles, but it invites them and sustains them. The oratory of men like Hayne, Webster, Calhoun, Douglas, Lincoln and others, aligned men in one of the greatest combats ever known. The classical utterances of Mr. Lincoln, his debates with Douglas, and his speeches elsewhere, gave the country the President who carried the greatest burden the government has ever known. Patrick Henry may claim for his one oration a large share of the credit for making the American colonies an American nation.

It is surprising to note that some of our weekly exchanges have evidently brought themselves to believe that the business of the country weekly newspaper publisher would be injured by the passage of the Lord bill which proposes to rectify the abuses of the second class mail privileges.

The very fact that Mr. Lord's measure proposes to correct existing evils, whereby the United States Government is defrauded of millions of dollars annually, should be sufficient reason to cause every honest publisher to earnestly join in the crusade to clip the talons of the "fake" publishers of the country who are using the postal appropriations of Congress to the detriment of the legitimate patrons of the service.

The Lord bill is an eminently just measure, and the only change it proposes over the present law is that of requiring certain classes of publications, which are defrauding the government, to pay more than they are now paying; they will still be admissible as mail matter, but only in the class to which they properly belong.

The Lord bill came from the committee with a favorable recommendation, and it was owing largely to the powerful lobby set up in Washington by the big publishers who have been misusing the mails that the bill was defeated.

The regrettable part of the whole affair is that so many country publishers have been hoodwinked into supporting the publishers who are engaged in printing alleged magazines that monthly issue millions of free copies for the sake of giving advertising value to their publications.

Year after year the various postmaster-generals have recommended to Congress the passage of such a bill as Mr. Lord, of California, has presented. Postmaster General Smith has called attention to the flagrant abuses of the second-class privilege and in his annual statement said:

For this costly abuse, which drags on the Department and weighs down the service, transmits its power and means of effective advancement in every direction. It involves a sheer waste of $2,500,000 or upward a year. The postal deficit for the current year is $6,000,000. But for this wrongful application of the second-class rate, instead of a deficit there would be a clear surplus of many millions.

With such an ample margin the possibilities of practical improvements are apparent. If this deadly burden upon the mails were removed, the Department could happily enter upon a systematic policy of enlarged and progressive service, with the assurance that sound business management and increasing facilities would bring commensurate returns which would be swallowed up in the maw of private interests without any public advantage.

If it were not for the waste which is caused by the abuses noted, it would be possible to give penny postage to the country, or free rural delivery.

The Lord bill is a little bill of four pages, and it is incredible to believe that any country publisher can read its provisions and still be opposed to its passage. A false impression has arisen in regard to sample copies, the sending of papers to exchanges and subscribers who have not paid their dues. The only objection that can be legitimately piled against the Lord bill is in regard to the segregation of the papers before they are deposited in the postoffice, but if any publisher is not willing to go to that small amount of extra work and at the same time save the government $20,000,000 per year he is not worthy of being a citizen.

Congressman Wanger voted for the passage of the Lord bill, and in doing so placed himself upon the side of the country publishers and opposed to the pilfering catch-penny publishing houses of the country.

To our esteemed contemporary who appears to be in the dark in the matter it is suggested that they obtain a copy of Mr. Lord's bill and carefully digest its contents.

KRATZ AND HIS "MEDICINE."
C. Tyson Kratz, of Norristown, made an unsuccessful attempt to be elected a delegate to the State Republican convention on an anti-Quay platform. Mr. Kratz was not only defeated but was overwhelmed by the voters of Montgomery county. In the convention Mr. Kratz while withdrawing his name as a candidate seized the opportunity to make a declaration, the truth of which will not be borne out by the facts in the case. In addressing the Montgomery county convention on Tuesday the enthusiastic Kratz made the statement that he had come forward as representative of the 2,000 or 3,000 Republicans who, like him, saw fit to oppose Quay candidates at the primaries but who took their medicine at the polls and voted the straight Republican ticket. When Mr. Kratz states that the insurgents do their fighting at the primaries and accept the result he states, either ignorantly or wilfully, that which is known to be false. The Quay faction in Montgomery has tried to deal with the anti-Quayites in a fair and honorable manner, but the insurgent element proved itself untrustworthy. The boasted "medicine taking at the polls" is entirely a product of Mr. Kratz's vivid imagination.

At the convention which nominated Republican candidates for the Assembly, where the Quayites had a very large majority, two candidates were nominated to represent the very small minority faction, the Quayites opposing three—an exceedingly generous apportionment so far as the "anti" were concerned. At the polls the Quay faction voted the entire ticket in good faith. The treacherous "anti" almost to a man on the stalwart candidates, and the result of the election was that the two anti-Quay candidates, and three Democrats, in place of the stalwarts, were elected.

If that be the way the 2,000 or 3,000 Kratzes "take their medicine at the polls" and vote the straight ticket" the regulars of Montgomery—who always vote straight—will be silly to let any more insurgents get on the ticket. The party had better meet defeat at the polls in a manly fashion than to temporize with the disrupting element.

An exchange desires to know if anybody has any knowledge of a piece of general legislation proposed or promoted by Mr. Bryan during his four years in Congress? The gentleman from Nebraska never proposed anything of a practical or sensible nature. His every utterance is of the sort that will not bear the light of reason. His speeches are nothing but appeals to the passions and prejudices of men, whom he would have believed have been held down to mental positions by unjust Republican laws. While posing as the laboring man's patron the Nebraska candidate is undoubtedly their worst foe, for under the guise of friendship he would throw them on to better disappointment. Mr. Bryan leads his hearers to believe that the men who are working with pick and shovel and the women who toil in the kitchen would occupy the positions of their employment if Bryan were President. His impersonal appeals have been listened to and it was pitiful to notice the glow of admiration that brightened the honest faces of the toilers in the audience at the promise of the impossible scenes which would be enacted when the speaker became President.

A Loving Wife Showed Her Husband the Error of His Ways.
He was a business man making a nice little sum every year for neatness and purposes besides extending his business and slowly but surely moving along toward prosperity. Yet he was not content, and in the hope of forcing the hand of Fortune was doing some trading in the stock market. His wife said it was gambling, pleading with him to stop. He insisted that it was perfectly legitimate and regular and she finally admitted that he was right and gave up the contest.

His wife gave him no further trouble until one Sunday morning she appeared in a new dress, a handsome new cloak. He wanted to know where she got it, and she told him that he would learn by and by. He went to church with her, feeling uncomfortable. He kept his peace, however, and said no more until the next Sunday, when she appeared in a rich, black silk gown. He asked questions, but got no answers that were satisfactory. All that week he worried so about that cloak and the silk that he lost his grip on the market, and fell short seriously. Sunday came again, and this time she had a pair of diamonds in her ears that fairly dazzled his eyes.

He hadn't a spark of jealousy in his nature, but he believed implicitly in his wife, but this was really too much. She calmly took from her desk a lot of blanks with which he was quite familiar and handed them to him.

They are the records of my transactions in stocks recently," she said, with an air of triumph. "I borrowed $500 on the diamond ring you gave me when we were married and handed it over to brother Charlie to invest for me. I told him you said it was all right, and he said as I told him to do, I didn't know a thing in the world about it, of course, but I was lucky, and I have made $1,500, and if the luck doesn't go against me I'll make another thousand next week. It is too easy for anything, and you know, dear, you showed me so clearly that there was nothing wrong in it. I have paid our share of the preacher's salary, too, for the next year, and I'm thinking of organizing a Daughters of the Stock Market in the church. Won't it be lovely?"

"Marry, my dear," he said solemnly, "if you'll quit, I will," and Mary, after the manner of women, began to cry, she was so glad that it turned out just as it did.—Detroit Free Press.
